

Toby POMEROY JEWELER

"I have two purposes in life: people recognizing their own magnificence and leaving our planet more beautiful, diverse and sustainable than it was when we found it. I strive to create jewelry that enhances a woman's true and natural beauty, reflecting the harmony of our earth in balance." -Toby Pomeroy

As a boy living in the foothills of the Himalayas, Toby Pomeroy was captivated by native artisans who created stunning woodcarvings, jewelry and brass objects using only their bare hands, simple tools and imagination. Inspired by these craftspeople and touched by the natural beauty of the environment, Toby became fascinated with nature-influenced design. While technologies have come and gone in the thirty plus years that Pomeroy has designed jewelry, he continues to pursue the purity of the ancient craft. Growing up in India, Toby developed his commitment to life in balance.

Today TOBY POMEROY is a world leader in environmentally sustainable and socially responsible jewelry. The launch of EcoGold and EcoSilver set a new standard, defining ethical luxury in ways never seen previously. Marrying timeless design with social responsibility, TOBY POMEROY jewelry truly makes sustainability beautiful. TOBY POMEROY studio includes a handful of young artists who, fascinated with texture and form, live to work with their hands. Their commitment to live, learn and create in harmony has the artisans forging reclaimed and source-certified, Fairmined TRUE GOLD metals into graceful forms inspired by the simplicity of nature. Like their process, the studio's designs are timeless, refined and beautiful.
